WORKING and WAGES

The number of jobs where wages were below what a worker would need to support a family of four above the poverty line also grew between 1979 and 1999.

In 1999, 26 percent of the workforce earned poverty-level wages, an increase from 23.7% in 1979.

Source: Economic Policy institute