Greetings Heelan Alumni and Friends,

During the weeks following the 2015 commencement ceremony, I have heard the word “great” used many times as a descriptor of that event and our school year. The class of 2015 is truly superb. We applaud these students for their excellence in the classroom, on playing fields and in artistic endeavors. Every graduate has contributed to the class and the school community. And, as a community, we celebrate their efforts and achievements.

While we acknowledge that teenagers can be challenging, we also recognize the engaging, friendly, polite nature and collective maturity of our students. These characteristics certainly speak to the powerful role of culture in a school.

This class of 2015 enjoyed the benefits of the first year in our Heelan Fine Arts Building. We hope to welcome them back in the near future to see the other half of our high school completed.

We are grateful for a community that supports our students as they worship, study, play, struggle and succeed. The transmission of religious beliefs, social values and good work habits from generation to generation helps to define Bishop Heelan.

God bless the class of 2015 and the parents, teachers, alumni, staff and friends who supported them.

James Tschann

Heelan Graduates Class of 2015
Bishop Heelan High School graduated 116 seniors in the class of 2015. Noelle Weaver of Anthon, Iowa was the Valedictorian and Jessica Brown of Sioux City was the Salutatorian.

Some 85 percent of Heelan’s 2015 graduates were offered academic scholarships totaling $9.6 million. Sixteen students were offered $1.9 million in athletic scholarships. The higher than average amount in academic awards was helped by graduate Kevin Servellon who received over $1.4 million in scholarship offers, including offers from Harvard, Duke, Georgetown, Notre Dame and Northwestern. He plans to attend Harvard and major in history.

See our annual Alumni Graduate section in this issue on page 14.

Computer Coding Club Teaches Programming
Who knew that video games like Flappy Bird, Destiny, Battlefield and Call of Duty could inspire students to spend more time at school?

A new computer coding club encouraged Heelan students this past school year to solve problems while creating video games and programming.

Heelan sophomore James Saulsbury launched the club with another student and learned along with his peers who came to the computer lab every Monday to tackle video game programs like “Unity 3D.”

“Creating video games is a good way to introduce students to learn coding,” Saulsbury says. “It’s fun problem solving. A common misconception is you have to be a math genius to do computer coding. No one here is a math genius.”

James learned Java programming in an online class through Western Iowa Tech Community College and learned still more as a student in the coding club. His group used a program developed by MIT students to teach coding skills

“Video game design prompts students to combine problem solving, creativity and critical thinking with computer coding and elements of graphic design,” says JoAnn Clemens, club moderator. “The Heelan coding club attracts great kids who work together to learn computer science skills that can open doors to careers in their future.”
Heelan Has Two National Merit Finalists

Bishop Heelan High School seniors Jessica Brown and Meredith Ritchie have been recognized as National Merit Finalists, and Brown is a National Merit Scholar.

They were listed in the winter Crusader Connection as semi-finalists and now as finalists are recognized as two of the top 15,000 students in the United States.

Both students were busy outside the classroom. Jessica, the daughter of Pat and Samantha Brown of Sioux City, starred on the Heelan state championship soccer team and played on the girls basketball team that went to state.

Meredith, the daughter of Thomas and Erika Ritchie of Elk Point, SD., starred in plays and was the wicked witch in the Wizard of Oz musical.

Heelan Art Student Honored with Award

Bishop Heelan High Senior Michaela Wadzinski won a Gold Key Award in Art from the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards program.

She is one of thousands of students honored out of a total of 300,000 submissions from schools.

Michaela’s work of digital art, entitled “Feathers,” was created as part of her Visual Design 3 class taught by Heelan art teacher Laurie Dougherty. Judges look for originality, technical skill and the emergence of a personal voice or vision.

Father Al’s New Scholarships Benefit Students

The late Father Al McCoy’s $163,000 bequest to establish the Father Alfred McCoy Scholarship Fund is enabling eight Heelan students to receive tuition assistance grants this fall.

McCoy, known for his Irish charm and short homilies, had served as president of Heelan High from 1996 to 1998 and continued assisting in the high school and interacting with students for years after that. He died at age 83 in 2012 after a priesthood of 58 years.

With the new McCoy Scholarship Fund there are now 14 different funds used to award scholarships to more than 40 students attending Heelan in fall.

Feeding the Hungry

Heelan High students joined with 5-8 grade students in assembling more than 115,000 meals for Honduras in March. Hundreds of students bagged meals of enriched rice, dried vegetables and seasonings as part of the “Then Feed Just One” program.

In four years of the Bishop Heelan system service project, students have assembled a total of 653,109 meals.

Quiz Bowl Goes to Nationals Again

Heelan High’s Quiz Bowl Team competed for the second consecutive year in the National Academic Quiz Bowl Championship in Chicago.

Art Students Help Jackson Recovery Centers

A team of art students of Heelan donated their talent this summer to paint the nursery and preschool at the Women’s and Children’s Center of Jackson Recovery Centers in Sioux City. They painted colorful animals and birds on the walls under the direction of Laurie Dougherty, Heelan art teacher.

“ar is so impressed and thankful for the artwork the students did for us. Our children have all commented on how cute the animals are,” says Jeanette Plueger of Jackson.

The Women and Children’s Center provides inpatient addiction and disorder treatment to pregnant women and women with children. The on-site daycare enables children to remain with their mothers in treatment.

TeamMates: Mentoring Matters

Nearly a dozen local alumni are serving as student mentors in a new program, TeamMates, launched by the Bishop Heelan school system this past school year.

The school-based mentoring program for students in grades 3-12, was founded in 1991 by Tom Osborne in Omaha to help youth improve school attendance, grades, behavior and outlook. Today it’s offered in schools in Iowa, Nebraska and California.

“ar is so impressed and thankful for the artwork the students did for us. Our children have all commented on how cute the animals are,” says Jeanette Plueger of Jackson.

Memorial Field Getting New Track

Memorial Field is getting a new track. With large, growing cracks that could no longer be patched, a replacement track could not be delayed.

Heelan is receiving help for the project from Denny Walker ‘63 of Omaha, who made a major pledge toward the new track.

The Heelan Auction raised $63,000 for the track in April. An update will be featured in the next Crusader Connection.

Students Travel to Rome and Ohio

Nearly two dozen Heelan students embarked on a nine-day trip overseas this summer to tour historical landmarks and experience their faith in the heart of Italy.

Joining with high school students from Fort Dodge St. Edmond and Storm Lake St. Mary’s, they toured cultural and religious sites in Rome, Assisi, Florence and more. They attended Mass at San Lorenzo, St. Peter’s Basilica-Hungarian Chapel and Casa Santa Maria of the North American College.

“It was an awesome time!” said Father Patrick Behm, one of three priests with the trip. “The students grew in their faith and absolutely had a blast.”

Behm also took scores of students to Franciscan University in Steubenville, Ohio to hear speakers and take part in special worship services to help them grow in their faith and relationship with God.

Spring Break for many of us may mean vacations to nice beaches, relaxing and enjoying time off school and work, or doing some much needed “spring cleaning.” Spring Break 2015 meant a mission trip to Walls, Mississippi for a group of Bishop Heelan High School students.

Father Patrick Behm, Heelan chaplain this year, organized the trip, and 10 Heelan students signed up. “In past years, students would travel to Honduras, but to ensure their safety, we agreed that we would stay inside the United States this year,” Fr. Behm said.

The students traveled to Mississippi in school vehicles and had parent and teachers chaperoning the trip. Once in Walls, the students stayed in Mission houses, one for the boys and one for girls. Sacred Heart Southern Missions hosts the groups that visit.

Students on the trip spent time helping residents of Walls repair their homes and offering fellowship at the Garden Café. “The Garden Café is a place where you can get a free home-cooked meal every day and people from any walk of life can come there and eat a meal and spend time together,” Yasmeen Rose explains. Rose discussed that it was eye-opening to hear a parent tell their child, “You need to eat a lot because this is all we are having today. We don’t have to worry about whether we are going to eat today or not.” At the Café, students prepared the meal and also shared information about Passover and Easter.

“At one home, we fixed the soffits and fascia, but we also spent a lot of time with the elderly homeowner,” shares Jessica Brown. “What struck me was how thankful she was when we were finished, not just for her home improvements but for the time we spent with her. She said to us, ‘I’ll miss you guys not just for what you are doing, but for the company too.’ It reminded me our ‘Then Feed Just One’ project that we do here at Heelan. Its mission is that if you can’t help a thousand, then feed just one. I felt like we did that in Mississippi.”

Blake Bogenrief and Joe Verschoor spoke about their surprise with how there would be very lavish homes next to shacks. “One of the homes had tarps for walls and a very funny smell. Animals were getting in at night and the one home basically was unlivable,” Bogenrief relays. All of the students discussed how frogs, snakes, and hornets were abundant in the homes where they were dry walling, plastering and roofing.

“It made realize how comfortable we live, and I am very thankful for that,” shares Verschoor. When the students were asked if they would do another trip like this again, there was a resounding “Yes.”

Fr. Behm commented on the importance of mission trips, “It’s important to follow the call of the Gospel. Matthew 25 is very clear that what we do to all of our brothers and sisters we do to Christ. We go on mission trips to encounter the person of Jesus Christ in the poor and serve the poor.”

Behm, originally from Storm Lake, Iowa, was an instructor at Bishop Heelan for three years and assistant pastor at the Cathedral of the Epiphany. He was transferred in July to serve a Le Mars parish and Le Mars Gehlen Catholic School.

“On behalf of the class of 2015 it is my privilege to say thank you to the faculty, staff, parents, family and friends for being with us for the last four years. How odd it feels to think back to 2011. Everyone had their own expectations as a freshman, but personally, I did not know what to expect. So I did something like this:

Hurrying in my oversized navy polo and my older brother’s Sperrys, I rushed to pack my books away to get to a freshman football meeting in Coach Burchard’s room on third floor. Still pretty clueless and trying to make a good impression, I came barreling into 306 with only seconds to spare before the meeting began. There was only one desk open in the back of the room, and I thought I was home free. Unfortunately, on my way to the back of the room my stuffed backpack accidentally knocked Coach’s brand spanking new iPad off of his desk onto the floor. Ergo, more or less shattering it into a million pieces. Coach shared with me his various concerns on the condition of his iPad, and I was off to a fantastic start.

Welcome to high school!

For the past four years we have shared experiences from embarrassing to inspiring. We endured AP exams, snow days, heat days, asking each other to dances, competing in sporting events, rushing to get projects finished, and had the opportunity to be the first class in 65 years to experience school in a new Heelan building.

Everything in this new building was a first. The fall play and spring musical saw an explosion of creativity and expression led on stage by this senior class. Our athletic teams put in countless hours of hard work in the weight room and sweating in the CYO throughout the summer. Led by discipline, our girls and boys teams made this high school proud.

But do you know what makes me most proud of this class? When I was a freshman, my mother and our art teacher, (Laurie Welte Dougherty ’80) had a heart attack. And you, class of 2015, you were there for me and my family. Do you realize how much that meant? I saw firsthand how powerful the Heelan family could be. You stopped me in the hall and asked me how I was. You called and invited me to your house. For weeks people brought us dinner. The football team finished sodding our yard for us. You did that, and I am forever grateful.

Thank you for the honor of serving as class president this great year. Remember you were a Crusader first. Every single one of you has unique and amazing gifts. Just as Martin Luther King Jr. said about church, Heelan ‘is not the place you come to, it is and always will be the place you go from.’ So go from this place and use your gifts. Go from Heelan and make a difference.”

Dougherty Named Rotary Student of the Year

Patrick Dougherty, above, with his parents Marty Dougherty ’72 and Heelan High art teacher Laurie ’80, was chosen as Rotary Student of the Year from among top students at Sioux City high schools.

In addition to heading student council, Patrick was on the gold honor roll; competed in speech events; played soccer, baseball and football; performed in this year’s school play and musical: went to Boys State and more. He will attend Creighton University.
Students and educator Diane Ladwig ’68 are a perfect match, just like her hundreds of pairs of colorful and creative socks.

So much of a perfect fit that Ladwig, a first-grade teacher at Holy Cross School -- St. Michael Center, this year marks her 40th year of teaching in Sioux City’s Catholic schools.

But to Ladwig, the start of the school year seemed like her first.

“I guess that’s what happens when you love what you’re doing,” she said.

The daughter of a music teacher, Ladwig (maiden name Neu) grew up around education and attended St. Joseph’s Elementary School, Heelan and Briar Cliff College.

“My mom was a teacher and I always wanted to be just like her.”

Ladwig was acknowledged for her milestone at an assembly in January where she received a standing ovation.

Long-time Principal Michael Sweeney ’76 drew laughter as he announced he was a student at Heelan when Ladwig started teaching. Sweeney said Ladwig’s dedication reflects the mission of Catholic schools as a whole.

“By her example, she shows a lot of our mission statement, which talks about faith, values, knowledge and service,” he said. “She’s lived it.”

Ladwig said the stories told by adults when they were in her class, and her connections with former students, have provided a living scrapbook for her career. She receives invitations to weddings and graduations, sees former students at parent-teacher conferences and regularly stops for a chat when out in public.

And each time a student, either current or from the past, sees Ladwig out in public, one question usually follows.

“I can’t go to church, the grocery store, the mall – anywhere – unless I have on some silly socks,” she said. “Wherever I go, I’ve got older students, moms and dads ask me what kind of socks I’m wearing.”

Those socks, along with her mischievous miniature schnauzer, Cooper, are popular with her impressionable first-graders. Mentions of crazy socks and naughty dogs often end up in the students’ short stories.

Throughout her career, Ladwig has mostly taught first grade but has also spent years in kindergarten, second, fourth and fifth grades. New grades, curriculum changes and technology growth in the classroom have led to adjustments in her teaching.

But Ladwig said she tries to keep the curriculum fun and topical with projects, such as a winter writing assignment where students contemplate what they’d do if they were trapped in a snow globe.

“She makes learning fun,” said 6-year-old Kaleb LaFavor, who has an aunt taught by Ladwig.

Ladwig said the students’ enthusiasm toward learning rubs off on her and has made the years fly by.

“I’ve been asked when I plan to retire and I always say, ‘When it stops being fun,’” she said. “Forty years seems like a lifetime but it feels like I just started yesterday.”

Diane (Neu) Ladwig ’68 celebrated 40 years of teaching this year.

Collison, a former referee and umpire, prided himself on pronouncing students’ names correctly. He also enjoyed creating a fun relationship with Heelan fans.

“I remember when students first brought funnel cakes to the press box,” he says. “When I first saw those I immediately announced students had “nutritious and deeee-licious funnel cakes for sale. Get ‘em while they’re hot.’ It became a standard announcement every home game.”

Collison saw even more success in Crusader basketball. He announced Heelan home games on their way to win three consecutive state championships in 2009, 2010 and 2011.

“There’s nothing better than two teams going down to the last second in a tight game,” he says. “You have power with a microphone and can cause some drama. I have always been careful of respecting the official’s call, putting no emotion into the game and calming it down. Sometimes I just shut up.”

As an official who has announced at state basketball tournament games for 19 years, he’s seen his share of close contests, including Heelan ones.

“I can’t forget the one in 2009,” he says. “I still remember Brennan Cougill ‘09 hitting that last second shot because everyone went nuts.”

He was honored with the prestigious Bernie Saggau award this year for supporting athletics in Iowa.

“I had to be very neutral at state games because I was working for the state athletic association,” says the Crusader fan. “But I always lobbied to get the Heelan game to announce.”

He’s been proud to be part of Heelan sports and brags about the students.

“I saw so much dedication,” Collison says. “The kids remember their teammates forever. They are so glued together. A lot of kids play multiple sports and they support each other.”

In addition to athletics, Collison was happy to boast about Heelan students from his parish who excelled in fine arts, speech, quiz bowl competitions and the classroom.

“It’s been a great run in Sioux City,” he says. “I’ll continue to follow and cheer on Heelan from Carroll.”

Golden Voiced Priest Turns Over Microphone

Heelan football fans this fall will miss the resonant and authoritative voice of the Father Craig Collison announcing games as he has for the past 12 years.

That’s because Collison, Pastor of Sacred Heart Parish 2003-2015, has turned over the microphone to others because he recently moved to start a new assignment as Pastor of parishes in Carroll and Lidderdale, Iowa.

“Colly,” as he was affectionately called, announced home games during some of the most successful years in athletics at Heelan. In football, Heelan won two state football titles during his tenure, one in 2008 and the other in 2013 and was state runner-up four times. He watched it all—announcing countless first downs, touchdowns, extra points, interceptions and usually wins.

Steffen Named New Football Coach

Jerry Steffen, an assistant varsity football coach for over 25 years, is the new head football coach. He takes over for Roger Jansen who has moved to Morningside College’s football program.

Steffen has been varsity assistant since 1986, serving most of 29 years as defensive coordinator.

“Jerry has put his heart and soul into Heelan football for nearly three decades,” says Jason Pratt, Heelan activities director.

Steffen was four-year starter in football and track at Waterloo Central. He graduated from Morningside in 1984 where he was a college conference and school record holder in receiving.

Steffen owns Creative Embroidery in Sioux City. A musician, he is also an Iowa Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Inductee and plays for the band Locked & Loaded.

Foster Takes Over as Head Basketball Coach

At 6’9” they were known as the Twin Towers. Now long-time assistant Andy Foster is taking over as head basketball coach, replacing Tom Betz who has coached since 2001.

Foster is a 1997 graduate of Caledonia High School, where he played on three state qualifying teams and one state championship. He attended Northern State University following high school and was team captain his senior season. Andy has a Masters degree in Education from Augustana College.

Since joining Heelan in 2005 Foster has served as assistant boys basketball coach, girl’s and boy’s golf coach, assistant activities director and health and physical education instructor.

“Tom’s win/loss record was astounding and Hall of Fame worthy, and Tom won the right way with dignity and class,” says Jason Pratt, activities director. “Andy will be a great coach, too.

Di Pol is New Wrestling Coach

Pete Di Pol, an experienced and successful college and high school coach, will be Heelan’s new wrestling coach.

Di Pol comes from Baker University in Baldwin City, Kan., where he had a NAIA national champion during his first season in 2014 and saw his team finish in 14th place in 2015. Before Baker, Di Pol was head coach at Gloucester County College in Sewell, N.J., and earned coach of the year honors.

Di Pol won three state championships and built a 225-67 record in New Jersey. His teams at Camden Catholic were twice ranked in the top 35 nationally. As a prep wrestler in the 1990s, he was a member of four state championship teams.

Jansen Earns Two State Titles

Roger Jansen ’81 played tackle on his Heelan squad and began helping as a volunteer football assistant while attending Morningside College. He was head coach from 2000 to 2015 and was interim in 1997. In 16 seasons, Jansen rose to the top of the all-time metro coaching wins list with a 157-31 overall record.

He guided the Crusaders to Iowa 3A state championships in 2008 and 2013 and his teams were state champion runners-up in 2007, 2010, 2012 and 2014. Jansen, Siouxland 2002 Football Coach of the Year, coached his 2008 and 2013 squads to perfect 14-0 records.

He leaves Heelan to help coach football at his alma mater, Morningside.

Betz Claims Three State Titles

Tom Betz ’85 played post at Heelan and played at Morningside College where he was All North Central Conference and entered the business world. He returned to Heelan as a teacher and assistant coach for two years before taking the head coach post in 2001.

He leaves Heelan to help coach football at his alma mater, Morningside.

Betz will be an active parent for years to come.

The Heelan Crusaders Girls Soccer Team – a good, talented team that worked hard, played as a unit, and backed by good coaching – bulldozed their way to a Class 1A Iowa State Championship over the Nevada Cubs this past June in a 2-0 victory.

Through the three games of the state tournament, Bishop Heelan allowed zero goals, thanks to the phenomenal effort by goalkeeper Tristan Beaulieu who allowed only four goals throughout the season.

The Crusaders paced the Missouri River Athletic Conference (MRAC) with seven first team selections, and five members were named to the class 1A All-State team, which included Chloe Wetzbarger, Grace Hanno, Lauren Bleeker, Rachel Vondrak, and Tristan Beaulieu.

The depth of talent the Crusaders bring on the soccer field was unmatched by most other teams. This allowed Heelan to use all 11 players as a key to moving the ball offensively and actively defending the entire field. Jessica Brown (a National Merit Scholar) and Bleeker were the two forwards for the Crusaders, who, in the 4-3-3 formation, formed the outer perimeter when Heelan was on the attack.

While Brown and Bleeker both had the speed to beat opposing outside defenders, the Crusader midfielders had the height to give a distinct advantage when putting the ball back in the middle of the field.

With the starting midfielders Wetzbarger, Vondrak and Jensen Froehlich, the trio was able to get first or second touches on most balls crossing the middle.

Another aspect of the Crusaders was the amount of preparation the team had. Head Coach Jared Bodammer imparted a level of scouting and game planning for each opponent that was unmatched. Bodammer has coached in 14 of the Crusaders state-record 15 tournament appearances, the first 12 as an assistant to former coach Shawn Mansfield.

On road trips the team would often watch film of their opponents during the bus ride while assistant coaches Jeremy Reinert, Andrew Smith and Lawrence Jensen would focus on the defense, forwards and goalkeeping, respectively. On defense in particular, the staff stressed communication.

Defenders Taylor Beaulieu, Grace Hanno, MacKinsey Higley, Katie Glover and Alex Fox worked seamlessly with the midfielders to communicate opposing defenders in blind spots and help determine ball movement.

The Crusaders took a well-rounded approach to their team. They didn’t focus on one area, like scoring and defending, but made sure they were good in every aspect, from corner kicks, to running set plays after a foul. That formula, combined with a plethora of talented players and a smart coaching staff, led to a state championship for Bishop Heelan.

Help Meet Our $200,000 Gold Club Goal

Last year the Heelan Gold Club raised nearly $140,000 to support student athletics and activities. Donors, parents, coaches and teachers invested in our students to make the most of their high school activities. As a result, Heelan students enjoyed success on and off the field.

- Boys football was a state champion runner-up.
- Girls volleyball went to state, continuing a long tradition.
- Girls basketball made their ninth trip to state in the last nine years.
- Boys soccer went to state for a second consecutive year.
- Girls soccer are state champions! (see page 12)
- Boys and girl track athletes competed at state.
- Students competed well in other sports.
- Students in debate, show choir, speech and Quiz Bowl won trophies and honors.

“Gold Club is vital to all of our activities and athletics here at Bishop Heelan. It allows us to maintain our fleet of vehicles for safe travel to all activities. We need and value your support.”

Heelan Grad Helps Disaster
Matt Anderson Rallies Red Cross Response

The next time you wake up to morning news of a major disaster in the world, you may find Heelan graduate Matt Anderson ’92 responding behind the scenes.

In the past four years Anderson has been involved with typhoons, hurricanes, the Ebola response in West Africa, the April earthquake in Nepal and a cyclone in the islands of Vanuatu.

Following the November 2013 Typhoon Yolanda in Haiyan, Philippines, the Heelan grad was deployed to support the Philippine Red Cross, one of 46 disaster specialists who responded. The storm damaged or destroying over one million homes.

“The response started while tracking the typhoon from the Disaster Operations Center in Washington D.C.,” he says. “We could watch the storm coming on our mapping in our disaster center and begin prepping staff and volunteers before it landed.”

The prep time helped place people in safer shelters before the storm hit and mobilize responders. It addressed telecommunications mapping and longer term recovery planning. Victims received food, shelter kits, mosquito nets, blankets, hygiene kits, medical care, cash transfers and more, he says.

The Red Cross and other responders helped reconnect over 23,000 families and ensure people had access to psychological and emotional support. Six months after the disaster, 1.3 million persons had received Red Cross assistance.

“I was in the Philippines for over a month working with a pretty amazing group of people,” Anderson says. “We worked 20 hour days. You have to move quickly, be able to react, be flexible and be able to work in a fast-paced environment to support and help people. You have to embrace the different cultures and focus on what you need to do.”

Hurricane Sandy, Ebola and Nepal
Anderson worked Hurricane Sandy relief, too. The massive 2012 storm severely damaged New Jersey and New York and affected the eastern seaboard from Florida to Maine.

“Sandy was one of the hardest things I’ve ever responded to in my life,” he says. “It was very exhausting and rewarding with lots of moving parts. You have to work as a team.”

With the Ebola response in West Africa he worked from his office in D.C. to marshal forces to set up internet connections in remote areas, leadership support and remote mapping to pinpoint trouble spots. “It was an extremely complex and challenging humanitarian response,” he says.

As the Roster Officer for the International Response Operations Center (IROC) at the American Red Cross, Anderson oversees a cadre of skilled emergency response professionals who deploy on humanitarian missions.

“In my job I manage the roster of responders to ensure we can deploy within 24 to 48 hours to any incident in the world,” he says. “It’s a mix of staff and volunteers from all over the U.S.”

Most recently, he’s devoted time to the devastating April earthquake in Victims Around the Globe

Nepal where 5,500 people were killed. “It’s been really hectic few months with the Nepal earthquake,” he says.

Sioux City Roots Nurture Spirit

Growing up in Sioux City with dedicated Catholic parents and Catholic schools Anderson learned about caring for others from his parents. “My dad, (Jim Anderson ’61 a social worker) was very supportive of an adventurous life,” he says. “My mom (Helen) was a teacher and owned a preschool. My sister, Amy, is a social worker and my brother, Ryan, works in education helping others. So I guess that bleeding heart trait definitely runs in the family.”

Looking back at the influence of Heelan in his life, Anderson talks about former Heelan teach Bev Weisman and theater.

“The discipline of building the sets, rehearsing and working as a group was a team effort,” he says. “It was a wonderful educational opportunity.”

He united with former classmates when the Iowa Hawkeyes played Maryland in football last fall.

As a student at the University of Northern Iowa, Anderson joined Camp Adventure which sends students to American military bases and embassies worldwide to provide youth services. He earned a master’s degree in youth and human services at UNI, joined the camp staff, served as a Peace Corps volunteer in the Republic of Moldova and then moved to Washington, D.C.

Along the way Anderson married his wife, Maggie, who works in education policy at the World Bank. They married at St. Matthew’s Church and live a 20-minute walk from the White House with their toddler son, Konrad.

With disasters occurring regularly, Anderson will continue responding to incidents worldwide.

Matt Anderson’s home base is the Red Cross International Operations Center in Washington, D.C.

Midwest values and his Catholic faith will play a part in touching the lives of millions across the globe.

Dress for Success
Grad Funds Nike Gift for Staff

By JoAnne Fox • Reprinted courtesy of The Globe

Bishop Heelan High School graduates Todd ‘77 and Amy Delaney ‘78 Feltz of Omaha have been long-time contributors to many Crusader appeals. Now, the Feltzes have added apparel to their donation queue.

Thanks to their gift of $10,000, nearly 200 Bishop Heelan School system teachers, administrators, staff and parish priests were the recipients of Nike zip pullovers.

“We had made a contribution to the Fine Arts Building, but I told Tom Betz if he had a need come up we would support that,” Todd Feltz said.

“We have been a Nike school for a few years, and as a coach, I have Nike gear from coaching,” Betz explained. “Unfortunately, it had been a few years since our entire staff had received a new piece of school apparel.”

“When Tom mentioned this to me, I thought it was a perfect fit,” Feltz said. “A building is a building, but it’s the people in the building who make it work and need to be shown appreciation for that.”

Feltz recalled influential Heelan instructors.

“When I look back on our past high school lives, Amy’s and mine, it was more than the walls that impacted us; it was the teachers,” he said. “I would credit the teachers with where we are today, financially and spiritually.”

At the top of Todd’s Heelan memories is faculty member Father Paul Eisele and Heelan’s Glee Club.

“I’m not a singer,” he said with a laugh. “But Father Eisele got me involved with Glee Club and the barbershop quartet. I’m sure it was to challenge me.”

Betz was complimentary of the generosity of the Feltzes and other donors.

“If there is a need or something that we can get done for our great faculty and staff, it seems to only take one to two phone calls to get it done,” he said.

Feltz down-played the name “brand” of the gift.

“It’s not the Nike pullover,” he insisted. “It’s our appreciation of the efforts of all those associated with the school system. I hope others feel the same about Heelan as we do and participate in opportunities like this.”
Bishop Heelan supporters enjoyed a “magnifico” evening at the Heelan Auction “That’s Amore” and raised $362,232, an increase from the 2014 Auction which raised $315,000.

The final tally included nearly $63,000 for the Fund-A-Cause to construct a new track at Memorial Field.

The event drew over 500 guests to support the Heelan school system. Guests enjoyed an Italian-themed dinner topped off by cannoli and tiramisu desserts. They also gave high marks to hanging white lights over the dance floor and The Final Mix Show Band.

The top live auction gifts were a Roman Bath, a trip to Italy, a diamond jewelry set and a western theme dinner “Padres on the Ponderosa.”

Chair couples who worked on auction gifts and planning greeted guests entering the auction were Mike and Barbara Sloniker ’80, representing Heelan High; Jana and Rob Rehal ’85 of Mater Dei School; Tim and Beth McCabe of Sacred Heart and Teresa and Pat McElroy ’85 of Holy Cross.

“We thank everyone involved for making it a successful evening,” said Pat McElroy. “This event is a great example of the comradery and friendships that develop in our schools and churches. Our lives have been enriched by our friends we have met through our involvement in Catholic schools and this auction is a great example.”

“We couldn’t do this without our fun chair couples, generous sponsors and creative and dedicated volunteers,” said Janet Flanagan, development officer and auction organizer.

The Heelan Auction is the only public fundraising event of the year that unites parents, faculty, staff, alumni and friends to celebrate and support Bishop Heelan Catholic Schools. The next event will be April 23, 2016.
Hello Crusaders,

In the past few years I have enjoyed travels to visit with a number of Bishop Heelan High School Alumni. It is always fun to share the good news about Heelan and what our wonderful faculty and student body are accomplishing. A lot of things have changed in the 64 years since Heelan first opened its doors, but our basic mission or Catholic education continues. Here are answers to the most common questions.

“What is enrollment?”
Today Bishop Heelan High School enrolls 530 students. While enrollment is smaller than it once was, our students are far more diverse, focused and college-bound. They continue to learn from an outstanding staff of lay teachers.

“Are there any priests or nuns still there?”
Sister Colane Recker, our media center specialist, works at Heelan full-time. We have a new chaplain, Father Shane Deman ‘99. Faith is very much alive at Heelan. We open and close each day with prayer, have regular Masses in our chapel, daily religion classes, ongoing student faith activities, weekly all school Masses at Cathedral and more.

“What is tuition these days?”
Because the expenses of lay teachers are far greater, and parishes can support just a portion of student tuition, student tuition now is $7,710 at Heelan High School and $5,675 at our grade schools. Some families are blessed with the means to afford this tuition. For most, this tuition is a monthly financial challenge. This is where you can make a difference.

Support the Spirit of Heelan Scholarship Fund
The Spirit of Heelan Scholarship Fund is an excellent way you can help our Catholic school system in Sioux City give young people a strong foundation for life. Whether your gift is $20, $200 or $2,000, it will help make a Catholic school education affordable for hundreds of our students.

Please use the enclosed envelope and send a gift today. You can help our students with a gift to The Spirit of Heelan Scholarship Fund and/or the Gold Club Fund. You will be helping the next young family create their own “Crusader Connection.”

God Bless and Go Crusaders!
